

CCP Research Foundation and the Centre for Compliance and Trust at Cambridge Judge Business School collaborate on banking standards initiatives.

Cambridge – 22 December 2015

The Centre for Compliance and Trust (CCT) at the University of Cambridge Judge Business School and the CCP Research Foundation CIC today announced that they have entered into a collaboration under which data and expertise will be shared and the two institutions will arrange joint seminars and other events in areas of common interest.

The initial joint programme will focus on banking standards and so-called “grey areas” related to bank misconduct and ethical behaviour. The programme will be case-study based and of a participative nature.

Under the arrangement, which is for three years, CCT becomes an honorary member of the Foundation's Conduct Costs Project Association. Richard Hill, the Executive Director of CCT, also joins the Advisory Board of the CCP Research Foundation.

Roger McCormick, the Managing Director of CCP Research Foundation, said:

"We are delighted to enter into this arrangement with the Centre for Compliance and Trust at Cambridge Judge Business School which will further strengthen our research capacity and reach in the conduct, culture and people areas and enhance our contacts with the academic world, where interest in the relationship between business and ethics continues to grow."

Richard Hill, the Executive Director of the Centre for Compliance and Trust said:

“Understanding how financial services and other industries conduct themselves and how they can develop the highest standards of behaviour is a critical issue. Through this collaboration we hope to draw together the strengths of Cambridge Judge Business School Centre for Compliance and Trust and the CCP Research Foundation to develop greater insights which directly lead to more positive practices within industry.”

Details of joint seminars and other events, as well as collaborative research publications, will appear on both the CCP Foundation and CCT's websites from time to time.

ENDS

For further information, please contact:

For CCP Research Foundation C.I.C:

Roger McCormick

Managing Director

07802 604316

roger.mccormick@ccpresearchfoundation.com

For Cambridge Judge Business School:

Richard Hill

Executive Director, Centre for Compliance and Trust

01223 768393

r.hill@jbs.cam.ac.uk

About CCP Research Foundation C.I.C

The CCP Research Foundation is an 'umbrella' organisation that will work to procure funding for, and provide academic and expert consultancy support to, Associated Research Projects and will undertake other related activities in furtherance of its mission to champion research and best practice in 'conduct risk', 'ethics-led' decision-making and governance and related questions that impact on "public trust" in the way organisations are run.

The Foundation serves the wider public interest by virtue of its social mission and is held to account through the academic output of the Associated Research Projects, the related activities that it supports and its annual regulatory returns. It is a company limited by guarantee and will not pay dividends.

For more information please visit: <http://www.ccpresearchfoundation.com>

About The Centre for Compliance and Trust (CCT) at Cambridge Judge Business School, University of Cambridge

Situated within one of the world's most prestigious research universities, and in the heart of the Cambridge Cluster, Cambridge Judge Business School leverages the power of academia for real world impact. Since 1990, the School has forged a reputation as a focus of rigorous thinking and high-impact transformative education. Cutting edge research is rooted in real-world challenges, and students, clients and future leaders are drawn from a diversity of backgrounds and countries.

UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE
Judge Business School

CCP RESEARCH FOUNDATION
Conduct, Culture, People

The Centre for Compliance and Trust is an independent platform within Cambridge Judge Business School established to work with the financial services sector to develop best practice and drive forward banking that is appropriate for the 21st century.

Sitting within the Executive Education function, one of the key goals of The Centre for Compliance and Trust is to lead the effective development of skills and behaviours of those who lead and drive practices which impact on these critical areas.

For more information please visit: <http://www.jbs.cam.ac.uk/faculty-research/centres/compliance-trust>